

Code of Conduct

Purpose

This Code of Conduct sets out the standards of behaviour expected of everyone at Harbourline Freight Systems, including how to handle gifts, conflicts of interest and outside work.

Gifts and hospitality

Employees may accept modest gifts and hospitality from customers, suppliers or partners in the ordinary course of business. Any gift or hospitality valued above $200 must be declared to the employee's manager and recorded in the Gifts Register before it is accepted, so that the company can assess whether it creates a conflict of interest.

Gift value	Action
$200 or below	No declaration required
Above $200	Must be declared before acceptance

Conflicts of interest

Employees must declare any actual, potential or perceived conflict of interest as soon as they become aware of it, and no later than 5 business days after it arises. Declarations are made through the People Portal and reviewed by the employee's manager together with People & Culture.

Secondary employment

Employees who wish to take on secondary employment, consulting work or a directorship outside Harbourline must obtain written approval before starting that work. Approval considers whether the outside role competes with Harbourline, uses company time or resources, or otherwise creates a conflict of interest.

Reporting concerns

Employees who become aware of a breach of this Code, including an undeclared gift or conflict of interest, should raise it with their manager or through the confidential ethics hotline. Reports are treated confidentially and without retaliation against the person raising them.
