

Parental Leave Policy

Purpose

This policy describes the paid parental leave available to Harbourline Freight Systems employees on the birth or adoption of a child, and how it interacts with superannuation contributions during unpaid leave.

Eligibility

An employee qualifies for paid parental leave once they have completed 12 months of continuous service with Harbourline Freight Systems as at the expected date of birth or placement. Employees who have not yet reached 12 months of continuous service may still take unpaid parental leave under the relevant government scheme, but the company-paid entitlements described below do not apply until that milestone is reached.

Paid leave entitlement

Employees who are the primary carer of a newborn or newly placed child receive 18 weeks of parental leave at full pay. Employees who are the secondary carer receive 6 weeks of parental leave at full pay. Both entitlements may be taken in a single continuous block or, with manager agreement, split into two blocks within the first 12 months after birth or placement.

Role	Paid leave
Primary carer	18 weeks at full pay
Secondary carer	6 weeks at full pay

Superannuation during leave

Superannuation guarantee contributions continue to be paid as normal during the paid portion of parental leave. In addition, Harbourline continues paying superannuation contributions on the unpaid portion of parental leave for up to 12 months, so that an employee's retirement savings are not reduced by an extended period of unpaid leave.

Returning to work

Employees returning from parental leave are entitled to return to their previous role, or a comparable role at the same level and pay, and may request a phased return over the first four weeks back.
